AMERICAN COMMANDO UNITS SWING INTO ACTION AS PARTICIPANTS IN HUGE FORAY AGAINST DIEPPE AREA OF OCCUPIED FRANCE

Carry Tanks With Them for First Time—Official Announcements Insist Attack is Merely a Commando Raid and Not a Full-Scale Invasion — Unprecedented Forces of Aircraft Involved

(By International News Service)

LONDON, Aug. 19—American Commando units swung into action against occupied Europe for the first time today as participants in a huge foray against the Dieppe area of France which led a jittery Germany to announce that actual invasion and creation of a second front is under way.

For the first time, the Commandos carried tanks with them to aid in achievement of military objectives, which in one sector of Dieppe included complete destruction of a six-gun cross-channel battery and an ammunition dump.

With operations still in progress under a screaming canopy of British and American planes this afternoon, official announcements all insisted that the attack was merely a Commando raid and not a full-scale invasion, despite the large number of men and unprecedented forces of aircraft involved.

The headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of American forces in the European theatre of war, issued a communique which said:

"In combined operations in a raid on the Dieppe area, a detachment from the United States Ranger Battalion is taking part with Canadian forces and British special service troops and a small detachment of fighting French."

An announcement from U. S. Army headquarters revealing the existence and careful training of this hitherto unknown unit, said:

"Specially selected American task troops chosen from among an avalanche of volunteers from the various branches of the army have been training for some time for the Commando forces headed by Lord Mountbatten. These special task troops make up what is known as the United States Ranger Battalion."

Official British announcements disclosed that a large-scale raid on the coast was in progress but a broadcast by the Berlin radio indicated that the landing was more than a light assault designed to gain information.

The official German News Agency was quoted as saying that the Commando landing was accompanied by infantry and tank units supported by strong air and naval forces.

The German people were not told of the Dieppe landing, significantly enough, the broadcasts being beamed solely for the consumption of the foreign press.

The invasion coast was turned into a raging battle ground for a distance of 80 miles as squadrons of Royal Air Force planes swarmed across the channel by the hundreds to support the land forces put ashore at Dieppe.

Cross-channel gun-fire which had been widespread at the start of the landing maneuver and included the areas of Boulogne, Calais and Dieppe, later was heavily concentrated in the Dieppe area.

Explosions were continuous. The shocks from the charges carried across the channel 60 miles to Folkestone.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Price Ceilings

Washington, Aug. 18. MR. LEONARD HENDERSON, the Price Administrator, and Mr. Donald Nelson, the WPB head, important Presidential aides, lunch together several times a week. They are intimate friends. The other day Mr. Henderson extolled Mr. Nelson, whose responsibility for the present shortages which are cramping war production is unquestioned, as one of the greatest men he knew. In return, Mr. Nelson tells one and all that "Leon" is one of the ablest men he ever met in his life.

THEY both may be right. Clearly, it is to their mutual advantage to paint that sort of portrait of each other and their publicity agents have rushed to proclaim it. They are in much the same field, clothed with unaccustomed power and assigned to jobs for which they lack training and experience. Whatever the effect of journalistic boasting upon the informed, no posted person really thinks either of these officials is as big as he is pictured by the other. That, as an old and shrewd political leader used to say, is the "phonous bolognism primus." If measured by any yardstick other than the one they themselves employed, the Messrs. Nelson and Henderson would check very short, indeed. Evidences of the Nelson lack of foresight are glossed over by those who hold that one must swallow without gagging whatever any man does or does not do, once he is installed as a Presidential aide. Possibly, this journalistic insistence will enable Mr. Nelson to get by with what Theodore Roosevelt used to call the "feeble-forceful" way in which he is managing the WPB.

SO FAR as Mr. Henderson is concerned, if it were not for its tragic aspect, his situation would be ridiculous. Here is a man, with vast authority

SURPRISE RAID TEST PUTS TWO STATES IN DARKNESS; OFFICIALS RESPOND WELL, BUT MANY ARE CAUGHT MINUS CREDENTIALS

The two-state blackout surprise air raid test, last night, threw Bristol and the other sections of Bucks County into darkness at 9:31 and lasted until 9:55, when the all-clear was sounded.

Many residents got notice through the radio before the Bristol alarm was sounded. Those who had their radios on at the time heard the signals given in Philadelphia and heard the words of warning given to those attending ball games that a blackout was on.

A number of air raid wardens and emergency police, hearing this word came over the radio, at once rushed to their posts and spread the word to others. They were already at their stations when the local signal was given. The advance warning spread rapidly.

The Bristol Defense Council had just convened in meeting at the Bristol Municipal Building, when a messenger came from the police department ordering the building to be blacked out. The Council adjourned to the police roll call room.

Franklin Wallin, newly appointed controller of the Bristol Control Center, got first hand evidence of how the present system operates here when an alert is received. Mr. Wallin stood at the police switchboard over which such alerts are now received, and watched with interest the manner in which Thomas S. Harper and Chief Linford J. Jones, dispatched the necessary messages and signals.

The key men who are supposed to be summoned were called and manned their posts. Robert B. Downing took care of Bristol Township and Bensalem Township in the absence of Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr.

A meeting of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, was in progress at the time. Advance word of the blackout was obtained and the session quickly adjourned.

Once the alarm had been sounded lights were quickly extinguished. A meeting of air raid wardens of the first sector was in session in the Bristol Methodist Church. John E. Healey, deputy chief, was speaking at the time. Healey is giving a series of talks on the duties of air raid wardens at various sector meetings. Healey at once quit his talk and the wardens ran to their posts.

The necessity for air raid wardens to always have their credentials with them was demonstrated. Only about a third are said to have had their arm bands and cards on their persons.

Women of the Moose were in the midst of a "doggie" roast at the residence of Mrs. Clifford Hagerman, Wallingford, when the blackout came. Continued On Page Four

Hope To Sell $37,325 of Bonds in Drive Today

Today, from one to five p. m., will mark the climax of Bristol's huge War Saving Bond and Stamp drive, sponsored by the Mill Street Business Men's Association. Pledges and sales as of early this morning totaled $62,675, leaving $37,325 to be sold this afternoon if the $100,000 goal is to be achieved.

The committee is optimistic, however, that when 5 p. m. rolls around the goal will have been reached. Tables will be placed on the sidewalks of Mill street this afternoon for the sale of bonds and for the taking of pledges. The committee urges that if you can not buy the bond today, make your pledge today.

One Man's Opinion By Walter Klerman (I. N. S. Staff Writer)

Shirley Temple and Mickey Rooney may grow up but it is becoming more difficult to get Young Democrats and Young Republicans out of the high chair.

The Young Democrats held a meeting in New York this week and one of the kid speakers was 46.

He said he became a Young Democrat when he was 40.

The Young Republicans have some older youths in stock.

It used to be that a male of 21 was a man. Now he wants to get into the movies at half price on his NYA allotment.

He is still a youth at 46 and his arteries begin to harden at 47. This eliminates the middle period of life which always has been regarded as the most dangerous.

When the convention orator says: "We look to the youth of America," eight men step out of wheel chairs and bow and the gallery cackles "he's right" through false teeth.

Thought for the day: Hey, kids—wanna buy a toupee?

TAX LAW SENSE

The cordial reception which most members of the Senate Finance Committee gave to some sensible tax suggestions is a heartening sign. The suggestions were that individuals and corporations be allowed some credit for paying old debts, for insurance, premiums and for the purchase of government bonds. The heartening sign is this hint that Congress may be veering toward realism in tax law writing.

Writing tax laws by political pressure groups inevitably results in contests to lay the burden on the other fellow, and enough concessions by politicians to lay an intolerable burden, finally, on every one. The policy today is the result of "soaking the rich" so often that they not only can pay no more taxes, but are taxed so heavily that money that should go into new enterprises and business progress is drained off and squandered by the government. It is the old story of killing the goose that laid the golden eggs.

The new tax rates that went into effect this year have accentuated the injustice of the policy. They have forced many corporations and individuals to borrow to pay taxes, or—said it amounts to the same thing—to dip into capital in an unfavorable market. At the same time millions who could, and should, pay some Federal tax are either not taxed or are by no means taxed according to ability to pay.

The House wrote a hodgepodge tax bill and sent it to the Senate with the understanding that no tax bill will be passed before the election. But the pressure of war financing and the demands of the people may force action prior to the election. The people are willing to carry any fairly distributed tax burden that victory in the war demands.

HURRYING PROGRESS

A measure of what the United States is doing in the form of new war devices is revealed in the announcement of the American Institute of Physics that America will need 200,000 men and women with some training in physics for the military operation of technical devices during the next year.

Electronic, short wave radio rays, infra-red (heat rays), X-rays and sound waves are being harnessed to help win the war. Physicists report remarkable progress has been made in the last six months but do not discuss details. Machines are being developed which some day will make sensational stories, but today they are shrouded in secrecy.

The Office of Scientific Research and Development has a new appropriation of $73,000,000 for research. This is several times what industries used to spend annually for similar work. Industrial research usually moves with caution into new fields. In war caution is thrown to the winds and new theories are brought into practical application in a hurry.

With government money behind them, America's incomparable corps of scientists are working as never before and they may crowd into the next year or two a quarter century of normal progress.

A California court has rejected a motion to disfranchise citizens of Japanese ancestry, but it is regarded as unlikely that the latter will take an active part in politics.

Not only has this been a season of unusual weather but, due to censorship of weather news, stories printed about it have been unusually meager.

thority, charged with the duty of keeping down the cost of living and averting the major disaster of inflation. There is no sensible person who does not agree that success for such an undertaking is possible only if real stabilization of wages and food products is coupled with a taxation program that will drain off the vast purchasing power which has gone to the lowest income groups as a result of the immense war expenditures. Intelligent enough to know this, Mr. Henderson is not politically strong enough to insist upon it. The excuse is that had he done so he would have lost his essential Presidential support, because in the White House there is no disposition to stand firmly against the labor and farm lobbies which insist that their groups must not be restrained or restricted. As a result, Mr. Henderson's operations have been futile and foolish. No sooner has he established price ceilings than they have been busted by the upsurge of wages and farm prices. The whole price-control effort has reached a silly stage.

LAST WEEK one of the great hotels of America got the following letter—from one of the great beef-and-pork-packing firms of the country: "Gentlemen," it said, "confirming your order of August 11, we are extremely sorry we are unable to fill your order, due to unusual conditions now prevailing in our industry. With all our products frozen at March ceiling prices and no ceiling at all on live stock, which represents 84 cents of every dollar of sales, to continue business as we have done in the past will entail a tremendous loss. Consequently, we have materially reduced our hog and cattle kill, and, naturally, we have to discontinue selling many of our items. We assure you that if relief is granted and we can again operate without loss, we shall be happy to take care of your requirements." This hotel had been buying $20,000 of pork products annually from this concern. Now, it cannot buy anything. Why? The answer is that, forced to accept Mr. Henderson's ceilings on its manufactured product, with no ceiling at all for the raw product it has to purchase, bankruptcy would be inevitable if business were continued. Hence, with loss to the firm, to the firm's employees, to the farmers, to the hotel and to the Government, this old business house has had to throttle down to the lowest possible production.

PRODDED by numerous such cases, Mr. Henderson has "asked permission" of the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a price on live stock. He has not got the permission and he has not established the price. Nor will he. Under the present law, at any time he can slap a ceiling on any manufactured product. But when it comes to farm products that is different. Here no action can be taken until a most favorable level is reached—in most cases 110 per cent. of "parity." But, even then, permission from the Secretary of Agriculture must be obtained. The result, of course, is that no price ceiling on raw farm products is possible. Nevertheless, Mr. Henderson establishes ceilings on manufactured farm products and the Government expects these firms to carry on as usual. It just does not add up. It just does not make sense. It never will make sense until the man at the top makes his attitude conform with experience, sincerity and common sense.

Quick Bean Cookery

The amount of time we women have to spend on cooking, now, is less than other years. Throughout these summer months we've all been busy. Not just on sedentary social—or even civic duties, but on wartime work in fields and orchards, in dairies and gardens.

Farm crops have never been so vital as they are today. Our cattle, our poultry, our produce never more important. And with man-power depleted as it has been lately we have had to put our shoulders to the plow again, and forewear the pleasures of the kitchen.

Well, we've done it before and we can do it again! There's never been a war waged in this country... from the first potshots the Indians took, behind trees, at our homesteading ancestors—to the late great war when our menfolk left us behind to fight on foreign shores... that we women have not played an active part in winning. We have never been sit-at-homers while our menfolk did the fighting. We could always shoot a rifle, swing an ax, plow a field, ride a horse, with the best of them.

It is a different role that most of us must play today. This is a different kind of war. But we are doing our part just as valiantly as ever in fields and factories—forts and arsenals—in hospitals and clinics and classes.

Busy as we are these days most of us don't have time for any lengthy cooking. We need quick meals—quick recipes—quick-trick dishes that will save us kitchen time and still feed our families well.

Ready-to-serve foods are the answer to this need. Fully prepared dishes like oven-baked beans. The real old-fashioned down-on-the-farm kind of beans that come today in jars and tins. These beans are already baked to a tempting meaty tenderness in a tartly spiced tomato sauce. You need only open and neat to have the main-course makings of a meal.

For variation, oven-baked beans may be combined quickly with other foods: With cooked leftover carrots and hefty meat balls... With rice and onions, Southern style... Or with old-time country garden herbs for an extra touch of savor. Here are some suggestions you might like to try next time you need to serve a hurried supper:

Hopping John

Cook—
1 tablespoon chopped onion
Until tender in—
2 tablespoons butter or drippings.

Add, mixing lightly—
2 cups cooked rice
1 medium (18 ounce) can oven-baked beans with tomato sauce and pork
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper.
Heat and serve. Serves 6.

Baked Bean Supper Platter

Season—
1/2 lb. ground beef
With—
Dash pepper
1/2 teaspoon salt

Form into small balls and brown cooking thoroughly in—1 tablespoon fat.

Add—
1 medium (18 ounce) can oven-baked beans with tomato sauce and pork
2 cups cooked sliced carrots (may be left over).

Heat and serve on warm platter. Garnish with sweet mixed pickles. Serves 4.

Baked Beans with Herb Flavor

Combine—
1 medium (18 ounce) can oven-baked beans with tomato sauce and pork

With—
1/4 teaspoon basil
Or—
1/4 teaspoon thyme
Or—
1/4 teaspoon sweet marjoram

2 tablespoons finely chopped sauerkraut.

Heat thoroughly before serving in vegetable dish. Serves 4.

PLAYOFF SERIES OF SUBURBAN LEAGUE WILL OPEN HERE SUNDAY AFTERNOON ON ST. ANN'S DIAMOND AT 3 P. M.

The first game of the five-game playoff series to determine the championship of the Bristol Suburban League will be played this Sunday at three o'clock on St. Ann's field. The second game, next Wednesday night, and the third game on the following Sunday will be played on the Edgely Diamond. The fourth game will come back to St. Ann's field and the fifth game is arranged by the league officials.

The contesting teams are Edgely, winners of the first half, and Voltz-Texaco which won the second half. The twilight games will start at 6:15 p. m. sharp.

The teams will use two umpires a game and the two for the opening game will be drawn before game-time Sunday. The league umpires: Walt Miller, Leo Burke, and Joe Kervick are requested to be present at the game Sunday before the draw.

The arrangements for the playoff games were made at a meeting between George Dougherty, manager of the Voltz-Texaco team; Edward DeKoyser, manager for Edgely; Thomas Juno, secretary of the league; and Henry Morgan, treasurer of the league. Last night's game between Hunter's and Edgely was forfeited to the Edgely team when Hunter failed to put in an appearance. The St. Ann's-Badenhausen game was called off.

Defense Council To Consider Alarm System Improvement

delay in procuring a proper place in the fifth ward.

The improving of the alarm system was considered and is to be given further consideration at a meeting to be held within the next few days.

It was brought to the attention of the Defense Council that there are a large number of both emergency police and air raid wardens who have not as yet taken the oath of office. The Council last night authorized that a notice be inserted in the Courier advising all those who have not as yet taken the oath to do so at once. This applies to both air raid wardens and the emergency police and is very essential.

Deputy Chief Warden Addresses Group

who attended will have a comprehensive and thorough knowledge of their own duties and the duties of those services with which they may be called upon to co-operate.

The subject of Mr. Healey's first talk was "Civil Defense Needs." These "needs" were classified under two headings:

- 1.—The things we must know.
 - 2.—The things we must do.
- "Most important is the fact that civil defense is everybody's business and that knowledge or even partial knowledge may save life and property; while lack of knowledge may cause you to lose both," said the Deputy Chief Warden.

Among the things that every citizen should know and do, which were explained in detail were: understand the objective of the enemy; study to know the names and purposes of your civilian defense organization; to make your own plans and preparations now; to learn to help yourself until proper aid arrives; to study about incendiaries and how to combat them; to obey orders immediately when told to evacuate your home; to learn about high-explosive bombs, their effects and how to minimize danger to yourself; to study air-raid precautions concerning flying glass, bomb shock and splinters; to know how to proceed in rescue work in buildings; and last but not least, the importance of complete co-operation by everybody in blackouts.

Mr. Healey admonished those present to try to show a little sympathy for those of their fellow citizens who are attempting to set up an efficient defense organization, for most of them are totally lacking in experience, they may make mistakes, quarrel among themselves and sometimes may not be so sure of the right answers; but they are working on something entirely new to our country, and that we should thank God that we do not have to learn it the hard way, as did England and some other countries.

Following an explanation of the memorandum regarding revision of OGD instructions for combating incendiary bombs, sixteen additional wardens were sworn in by Mr. Healey.

Former Schoolmates and Teachers Hold Reunion

GARDENVILLE, Aug. 19.—Gathering on the grounds of Rocky Ridge School near here on Saturday, a group of former schoolmates and friends at their 12th annual reunion recalled school days of yore.

The ringing of the school bell called the group to order.

The secretary reported the following deaths: Wilmet B. Morris, Charles Hellyer, Winfield Curtis, William Esser and Andrew Seifert. A minute of silence was observed in their honor, following which William H. Bartleman recited a poem in memoriam.

Flowers were presented to all members over 80 years of age. They included Mrs. Emma Vothers Morris, Miss Katherine Kratz, Miss Lucy Hellyer and Jonas Kern.

President Bartleman reappointed Mrs. Emma Beck Eisenhard chairman of the entertainment committee.

The present officers were unanimously re-elected. They are President William H. Bartleman; secretary, J. Lester Swartz; and treasurer, Harry Swartz.

SPORTS PARADE by EDWARD W. COCHRANE

Shut Out, the Greentree stable's three-year-old champion, will find tough opposition in the Travers stake at Saratoga when he will have to beat Apache, among others. . . . The Belair stud's colt has been doing great recently, winning the Butler and Yonkers stakes at Empire City and beating Whirlaway. . . . Apache works well on and off track and in case the track is heavy or muddy he'll be a good bet against the son of Epiphonie, who doesn't like heavy going.

Chaiky Wright will defend the world featherweight title against Charley Constantine in New York September 25th. . . . Tami Mauriello and Lee Savold will meet in New York October 30th. . . . Bud Wilson, figure skating champion is a corporal at Ft. Sill, Ok. . . . Charley Harvey, old time manager of Tom Heeney and others is working at a bath house at Brighton Beach. . . . When Mickey Cochrane predicted that Chet Laubs of the Browns, then with the Tigers, would never be a big leaguer, he missed in his judgment. . . . Larry French credits Mickey Owen, who missed that third strike in the world's series last year, with much of his success this season. . . . There is an expression around the American league that a player "has a lot of Yankee in him," which is a stamp of approval.

John Bosley, a horse trainer, has discovered that mud, mixed with epsom salts and vinegar, will cure a horse's broken leg, if it is properly set, so the animal can race again. . . . It has worked on four. . . . Nurry Dickson, Cardinal right hander, pitches the best knuckle ball in the National League. . . . In Detroit fans who catch foul balls hit into the stands turn them in for war stamps and the balls go to Army and Navy camps.

Ten harness horses will start in the Hambletonian at Goshen, N. Y., August 12th. . . . One major league club has three pitchers who won 20 games each in one season—Rube Walberg, Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw of the 1931 Athletics. . . . These same Athletics have finished last in six of the last ten campaigns. . . . Ray Starr of the Cincinnati Reds, pitched 21 double headers in the minor leagues.

Jimmy Crowley's Navy pre-flight football team will play a hard 12-game schedule in the fall, including Fordham, November 28th, and that's one game Crowley will point his team for. . . . Jim's team also will play Harvard, Boston College, Temple, Syracuse, Colgate, Georgetown, North Carolina State, and the Georgia and Iowa pre-flight elevens.

Ty Cobb could always steal at least 45 bases by this time in the schedule when he was a Detroit star and now if a player has 25 he is considered tops. . . . Ty didn't make many mistakes in baseball, but he made a huge one when he predicted in May that the majors would be forced to close shop by August 1st. . . . So many of the hotels in Florida that were used by baseball clubs in spring training, have been taken over by Uncle Sam for his army that ball clubs are making other plans for training their players next spring. . . . One may be to train them at home if the schedules are cut to four months.

Cardinals Miss Johnny Mize
The only time the Cardinals were sorry they had let Johnny Mize go was when he developed a Charley Horse and couldn't slug against them for the Giants. . . . Mize's hitting would have put the Cards a lot nearer the top and might have won some of those games the St. Louis team lost in Brooklyn.

Jimmy Wilson's confidence in Lou Novikoff, the Mad Russian, is vindicated. . . . Lou is hitting well now and is a fixture with the Cubs from now on. . . . Aubrey Smith, character actor in Hollywood, captained the first cricket team to invade this country back in 1887. . . . Capt. Howard Smith, one of the fliers on the raid of Tokyo with Jimmy Doolittle, says he passed over a crowd of 30,000 watching a baseball game in Japan.

Greg Rice has won 55 straight races. . . . Lou Ambers, former lightweight champion, now weighs 150 and is in the Coast Guard with Jack Dempsey, who tips the beam at 218, 26 pounds above his fighting weight 16 years ago. . . . Eosign Wellington Mara, son of the owner of the New York Giants, National Football League team, has completed his training at the Norfolk Naval Air base and has gone aboard a carrier.

Golfer Sneed Is Good Shot
Jimmy Walker, former mayor of New York, will be chairman of the Army all-stars and Giants football game in New York September 12th. . . . The Washington Redskins are targets for criticism because they are taking 30 per cent of the gate for the all-Army game in Los Angeles August 30th.

Sammy Sneed, the golf star, recently scored a perfect 400 on a Navy rifle range. . . . Dodger fans have already started arguing over Leo Durocher's starting pitchers in the world's series. . . . Such confidence.

Agua Caliente horsemen say War Knight is the best two-year-old prospect of the year but Easterners will wait for the running of the Hopeful stake at Saratoga before naming their choice as top prospect. . . . Hughie Jennings was hit with pitched balls 49 times in 125 games when he played with Baltimore Orioles in 1896. . . . Dog tracks in London have had an average attendance of 16,000 on one Saturday in July. . . . Stanley Howard, Philadelphia strong man, has given 958 blood transfusions and says he will run the number 1000.

Southworth to Become Farmer
Pitcher Larry French of the Dodgers says Bill Jurgens, in 1935, was the greatest shortstop he ever saw and Larry has been around 34 years. . . . Manager Billy Southworth of the Cardinals, owns a large stock farm near Columbus, Ohio, where he built a fine home two years ago and says he will retire there and operate his farm when he is through with baseball.

JUST TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO:—Jess Willard was dodging a fellow named Jack Dempsey, by trying to sign up with Fred Fulton for a battle for the heavyweight championship, but the public didn't go for the Fulton match. . . . Bill Johnston, Clarence Griffin, Robert Lindley Murray, Fred Alexander and Holcombe Ward were battling for the National singles tennis championship. . . . Ban Johnson, president of the American league, said there would be no world's series because of the draft drain on ball players. . . . Benny Leonard was offered $25,000 to meet Charley White in a 20-round fight. . . . Peace advocates were mobbed in London. . . . Jerry Travers beat Walter Hagen 3 and 1 in the International Golf matches at the Garden City, L. I. club. . . . Christy Mathewson and many other famous players, were in the army overseas.

DRAFT GRANDFATHER

CAMDEN, Ark. — (INS) — Albert L. Holt, a grandfather, has been called by the Onachita Selective Service Board for induction into the army. Holt has a granddaughter, but told Selective Service officials that he is ready to serve his country. He is believed to be one of the first—if not the first—grandfathers inducted under the present draft law in Arkansas.

ARMY SEEKS SAILORS

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — Now we've heard everything—the Army is looking for sailors! Believe it or not, the Army has issued a call for sea-going men to operate the "taxi" of the Engineer Amphibian Command. The taxis ferry the men to the shore, to start fires, or for scouting, and then race them back to their sea base.

Here and There In Bucks County Towns believes that she has raised the champion Victory cabbage head in Bucks county.

The cabbage head weighed nearly 11 pounds and measured more than 40 inches in circumference. The immense head of cabbage has provided three meals for the Ott family and they expected there will be enough for two more.

Because many members were prevented from engaging in the usual farm practices on account of wet weather, attendance at the quarterly meeting of Upper Bucks Pomona Grange No. 59, held at Plumsteadville was larger than usual.

The literary program was presented during the afternoon session.

When Bennett D. Jones, of Eureka, who wanted to use his car to make a business trip to Boston, Mass., tried to back out of his garage on Monday he noticed that both front wheels and the tires had been stolen during the night.

Mr. Jones had left his garage unlocked.

The thieves were clever—and considerate enough—to pile stones up so that the front axles rested on the stones giving the appearance of everything being all right with the car. Just to handicap Mr. Jones more, his wife's car, which had not been touched was parked in front of his automobile in the garage and they experienced no little trouble in getting the car without wheels out of the garage in order to back Mrs. Jones' vehicle out.

fense, has accepted the invitation to review the parade, and State Defense Unit officials from Allentown have also been invited to join the reviewing party.

Included in the units participating will be the Emergency Police, Volunteer Medical Corps, Air Raid Wardens, Firemen, Nurses' Aid Corps, Red Cross, etc.

This is planned as a civic project and the public is invited.

Surprise Raid Test Puts Two States in Darkness; Officials Respond Well

out street. Mrs. Hagerman is a warden, and the fire for the roast was quickly extinguished and the guests rushed into the house. Mrs. Hagerman went to her post. After the all-clear the roast was resumed.

Fifth Ward officials report that a father enroute to a Philadelphia hospital with his ill baby was helped very efficiently by defense volunteers. Police headquarters were called and Horace Schmidt was dispatched in his station wagon and conveyed the patient to the station. Mr. Schmidt had reported to the municipal building immediately upon hearing that a test was to be held.

Factories engaged in night work continued to work throughout the blackout. Definite instructions as to how to proceed in such cases have never been received. Officials do not know whether the factories have permission to work or not.

Complaint was again made about the inability to hear the signals in the upper section of the sixth sector. This is the second time that persons in that area have been unable to hear the signals. Neither the whistle at Manhattan Soap Co., nor the Wilson Distilling Co., were heard by many it was reported.

Wesley Spencer reported to the Bristol Defense Council, after the all-clear, that the whistles could not be heard. The alarm question is to be discussed and steps taken to improve the system.

There was a large group of persons at the P. R. R. station, both in the waiting rooms on the street level as well as on the track level. All were ordered to the waiting room on the street level.

Colonel Churchill Williams, in commenting on the test blackout of last evening, stated it was "fairly successful" in Bucks County.

At Doylestown, the county seat, the main difficulty experienced was with lights in business places, many in show windows continuing to blaze forth as automatic switches kept them turned on. At some places of business the lights in display windows burned for at least seven minutes after the signal was sounded.

Throughout the county as a whole the main complaint was that the test was not a surprise, too many "tips" being received by means of the radio, etc.

"Some wardens and police appeared on their 'beats' wearing capes, caps and arm bands, and carrying their red flashlights several minutes before the alarm sounded. This, naturally, tipped off all who saw them and spoiled things," commented county officials today.

In Bensalem Township there were no incidents reported. A fair percentage of emergency police and wardens turned out, those appearing for duty "doubling-up" for those who were away.

A benefit affair was being conducted by wardens and police of Andalusia section, and by a pre-arranged signal of several days ago, the master switch was pulled twice, signaling all defense volunteers on the grounds that a test was imminent. They all quietly left to be ready at their posts.

The results of the test in Croydon were reported as good, with at least 90 per cent of wardens and police on duty. A meeting of emergency police was being held at the headquarters of the Democrat Club on Cedar avenue, and when the siren sounded all rushed to their stations. Three violations are to be acted upon in that area, officials said. At two homes individuals are said to have gone out for the evening and left lights on. In another case it is reported that a man, walking on a highway, refused to go to a place of shelter, and continued on the thoroughfare. Action will be taken this week on all three cases. It is stated.

At Hulmeville the test was successful, with wardens and police on duty caring for territory of those who were out-of-town. One emergency police falling in a puddle of water during the black-out, stated his arm-band and wrist-watch fell off.
